

The most effective media regulator is an informed viewer choosing from a wide variety of options. The appropriate role of the FCC (and other regulatory agencies) is to remove obstacles to those options. Increase competition by removing outdated laws.