

To whom it may concern:

The FCC should stay out of this debate. Viewer and listener numbers are developed by the free market in response to the content provided by the various media outlets. Those that clamor for regulation of the airwaves are attempting to get a thinly disguised government takeover of the free market so that control of content can be stifled by countless nuisance court actions against media providers, who in their view, do not support their agenda. I urge you to adopt a hands off policy of content controlled by the free market.
