

as a conservative my basic feeling is to limit government activity in the private world. however broadcasting does need government watchdogging. the airwaves are partially mine. deregulation has allowed media giants to incubate, grow and the result is creative control. the fcc will be an ass if the commission does not step in and make it possible for independent producers to participate in presenting their creative wares to the viewing and listening audience.