

I urge the commission to approve merger to benefit consumers from the promise of more affordable and widespread broadband technology availability. The merger commitments will help drive high-speed broadband usage and close the digital divide between urban and rural America.