

Once again I believe you have committed an injustice to Amateur Radio. You have dropped the requirements to obtain an Amateur Radio license way to far. The Code requirement should at least remain for the Extra Class test.

The past injustice was when you made the three license classes and did not move the Advance Class Operators to the Extra Class. The old Advance written test was way harder than any test today.

Please consider requiring the Code exam for the Extra Class license and why not move all the Advance class operators to the Extra Clas where they belong. Especially since you are giving the Techincian class the chance to operate like a Tech Plus.

Respectfully submitted,

John Poindexter