Dear Kevin Martin,

Implementation of a fast, free, and family friendly universal broadband access program, like that supported by the Coalition for Free Broadband Now, would be a welcome, and necessary, first step in protecting our children online while at the same time ensuring a prosperous future for both children and the Internet itself. In addition, it should be noted that several of our global competitors already offer this sort of service to their citizens, setting a pace that America is already well behind of.

Sincerely,

Marie Vituszynski
