RE: WL Docket 07-16

Dear Chairman Martin:

Enough is Enough (EIE) is a non-partisan, 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, which emerged in 1994 as the national leader on the front lines to make the Internet safer for children and families. EIE has led the effort to confront online pornography, child pornography, child stalking and sexual predation with innovative initiatives and effective communications.

The Internet has revolutionized our lives and has transformed the way we live, work, conduct business, and communicate with others. There is no doubt that this life-changing technology which offers unlimited worldwide access to information and instant communications has enhanced opportunities for families, businesses and communities. Unfortunately, the internet has also opened up new avenues for sexual predators to seek out unsuspecting children, as well as provide a global platform for the distribution of hard-core sexually-explicit materials that is harmful to our youth.

(EIE) is dedicated to protecting children and families from the Internet dangers of pornography and sexual predators so that children and families can enjoy the enormous benefits that the Internet offers. EIE believes that parents are the first line of defense in protecting our children against dangers online. However, Internet safety is a shared responsibility between the public, the Internet industry, and the legal community. Parents, policy-makers, Internet industry executives, and even the media must all play a crucial role in the efforts to keep our children safe while online.

Part of EIE's mission is to encourage the private sector to take meaningful action to protect children on-line. In this regard, we are pleased to favorably comment on the petition by M2Z Networks to use fallow, unpaired spectrum to make family friendly internet content widely available to subscribers on a no charge to consumer basis. By making a commitment to use highly effective network based filtering, M2Z has found an innovative balance between spurring the rapid adoption of high speed internet service and protecting children and families from on line pornography and sexual predators.

We applaud M2Z Networks and urge the Federal Communications Commission to favorably consider this proposal to not only make internet service fast and affordable but also safe for families and children.

Sincerely,

Dona Rice Hughes
President
Enough Is Enough
