

I believe that there are scenes that are too violently graphic, period, regardless of whether there are disclaimers. I can't remember which crime show it was, but there was a scene of a dead person with a knife in the eye--it was just gross.