

Hi: I subscribe to satellite radio service and have it in vehicles and house. I'm in favor of XM and Sirius merging. Out in the country like South Dakota the radio choices are limited and the important broadcasts like national news, emergency or weather warnings are much needed. If the equipment and subscription services were combined it would cost less for them and the consumer both, and the equipment would be easier to install and maintain with the various vehicles and houses. If XM and Sirius work together and agree to control prices with because of cost savings from joining together I think they should be allowed to merge. Thankyou, Bob Olson.
