

I have been a subscriber to XM in the past and am currently a subscriber to Sirius. I think it would be in the best interest of all subscribers of either service to have these two companies merge together. There are a number of stations that I would never listen to on both services. However, there many stations on XM that I miss now that I subscribe to Sirius. Having the opportunity to pick the programs or a program package from both services is very appealing. I actually subscribed to both XM and Sirius simultaneously for a while. This was due to the fact that we had a GM auto which comes with XM and a Ford auto that came with Sirius. Which is another reason I think having both services merge makes sense. I felt it was too expensive (approximately $25 a month) but, did not have a choice since the vehicles come with the satelite radio pre-installed. Unfortunately, if one family has two vehicles from different car makers you have to subscribe to two different services. I really think having one provider that allows a customer to pick a package of service similar to Cable or Satelite TV would be in all consumers best interest. Thank you.
