

If Morse code had any strategic value, it would be kept alive by the Armed Forces of the United States or perhaps the Department of Homeland Security. Morse code is just a mode of communication and it should have the same status as other communication modes, PSK, satellite, etc.