Dear Monica Desai,

The FCC clarification of the emergency captioning requirements was wrong. All emergency information must be captioned with no exceptions. The deaf community must be aware of emergency situations such as a terror alert or impending natural disaster.

I support the Application for Review of Clarification of Obligation of Video Programming Distributors to Make Emergency Information Accessible to Persons with Hearing Disabilities Using Closed Captioning, sent by seven national consumer organizations on August 14, 2006, CG-Docket # 05-231.

Sincerely,

Deborah Hoss

Dear Monica Desai,

You know, they are suing the national treasury because the blind can't tell what dollars are which. If that organization of lawyers read about what you are doing, what is to stop them from suing your agency? I think this is a great flaw and is discriminating against the hearing impaired. I witnessed my friend during a fire drill - the sound was horribly loud and hurt my ears - my friend had her back turned away from the fire alarm (that also had a light that flashed as warning) - she could not hear the alarm. Her back was turned away from the light, so she did not see it either. She continued to work on her computer - what if the alarm was a real warning and not a test? What if I was not there to tell her the alarm was sounding? This potential for disaster is very real and if you take closed captioning from warnings and the like you are putting yourselves in the field of being negligent. Not to mention the potential for unneeded human suffering. Also, beyond the safety reasons, imagine how the quality of life drops without closed captioning. How would you feel if you could no longer have your tv? I have 2 close hearing impaired friends, and have met several others. I also have old relatives where their hearing can't keep up with their hearing aids. Please reconsider the lives you are effecting - and take into consideration your potential for negligence on a mass class action suit. Thank you.

The FCC clarification of the emergency captioning requirements was wrong. All emergency information must be captioned with no exceptions. I must be aware of emergency situations such as a terror alert or impending natural disaster.
