

I'm opposed to the merger between XM and Sirius satellite radio. As a consumer I feel that the monthly rates charged by the combined entity will increase despite promises to the contrary. If one company goes bankrupt and the remaining company raises prices then so be it. There's still no need to make it easy for them. In addition, the hardware currently in use may be rendered useless thus requiring more money being spent to keep your service.