

Please stop the telecommunications industry.

Please do not give the telecommunications industry free reign in their latest assault on the rights of the citizenry. The Internet has flourished for the past ten years precisely because the internet providers were forbidden from filtering content; without network neutrality, there is nothing to stop them from forcing additional fees on both content providers and content consumers. They already have a government-granted monopoly on telecommunications in America, and they already charge exorbitant prices for internet connectivity. Please do not further compound the problem by allowing them to tier the Internet in such a way that anyone who doesn't pay for "premium" access has their bandwidth throttled. Thank you for your time.
