

The silence that is the American people's voice.

Net Neutrality is essential to free speech, equal opportunity and economic innovation in America. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

This fundamental change would end the open Internet as we know it. It would damage my ability to connect with others, share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy. The FCC must ensure that broadband providers do not block, interfere with or discriminate against any lawful Internet traffic based on its ownership, source or destination.

Are the consumers not already paying to the services provided by the companies selling us products?

Do we not already pay excessive fees and taxes to connect to the internet through these media moguls such as Time Warner, AT&T and Verizon?

They say they will not be charging us but if they charged these companies to be on the internet, such as Microsoft, do you really think that fee would not be funneled down to the consumer?

For a consumer to connect to the internet we must first pay one of these excessively greedy communications companies and abundance of money for this service. We must then pay these same greedy swine additional "fees" for the service we are already paying for. Then we must pay the US Government their taxes so they can have their filthy hands in the pot for a service that we are already paying for and the fees that the communications companies are charging us.

When will enough be enough? At some point the US government needs to stand up for the people that not only elect them to office to represent us, the people not the corporate industries that lead them astray with promises of campaign funds and fancy dinners, but also that have placed our trust in them to do what is best for the people. I understand that a business provides a service that not only requires compensation but deserves compensation for the work they do but when profit margins are in the billions of dollars and one mans bonus for a year is more than most Americans will make in a lifetime it is time for someone to help the American people.

This attempt to again further tax the American people needs to stop once and for all. This attempt to thwart basic principals in which our great nation was founded needs to end. As one voice most Americans can no longer be in heard in the great country of the United States of America and this has to end. It saddens me to know that to stop these abusive taxes and surcharges imposed on us by these types of corporations we have to beg and plead with our government, who I thought was to be looking out for the greater good of the nation, to not fold under the pressures and briberies offered by these tyrants.

Since I must be a part of a larger voice to shout this message to you I have included my words in this document and hope that they are not overlooked and ignored like most needs of the American people.

Sincerely,

Jason Clark
