

Freedom starts from the net

The government must protect our airwaves from the same corporate gatekeepers that have stifled innovation and competition in Internet markets.

To restore America's leadership in high speed Internet services, the FCC must ensure that the upcoming auction sets aside at least 30 MHz of spectrum for open and non-discriminatory Internet access. This will guarantee that new entrants have the opportunity to enter the market in competition with incumbent providers.

It would be a big mistake to hand over these airwaves to the very same phone and cable companies that dominate the wireline market. We need more competition and innovation, not more of the same. This new wireless spectrum must be open and neutral so that America can build a better Internet for everyone.

My personal view..

The net is the last area people can speak their mind and vent so to speak.. Taking this away is like not talking to or even listening to your wife. Do you think she will stand for this? No and it will cost you and your children hard ship. This hard ship can in some cases cause your wife to lash out and turn everyone against you.. Is this what the gov or company's want? We all know Hackers will not leave it at that, they will cause millions of dollars in problems..

Personally I'd like to know what people are thinking and talking about.. Better to know then not know.. Keeping it fair for everyone will do all this and more..
