

free speech, free press, free internet

I cannot recall one instance in history when government or corporate control over media enhanced anyone's understanding of the world around them. The American public is not now and never will be served by corporate myopia. Information is the life's blood of a free and educated society, and a free and educated society is the only healthy society. Access to information cannot be limited or commercialized for the benefit of the few without becoming a detriment to the many. As citizens of the U.S., we own the airwaves that you are proposing to sell. We own the access to information that you are so eager to allow restrictions upon. It is time to place free and unbiased access within the grasp of all citizens. As citizens, we deserve it. As citizens, we demand it.

peace

heather