

I am absolutely behind NET NEUTRALITY

I work in computers and web development and am totally amazed that the point of access to the internet for individual Americans may be in jeopardy soon!

I jumped as fast as I could against this outright attack of the First Amendment by the certain American corporations and the American Government. Those airwaves have to remain "free" as they can for our American country to survive.

This the last "open" media available to the general public. It is our American pipeline of communication. It is our last free speech media also.

If we allow them to place "parental controls" on the internet, then we have lost the entire fight to free speech as Americans. Right now we really need free speech in America to expose the pervasive greediness in our large corporations and our government.
