

Stop the Corporate Welfare

It is absolutely absurd, and likely criminal in intent, to consider allowing the TelCos and Cable Barons more control over our communications.

This started in the 70s and 80s with 'de-regulation' which has really been 'de-competition.' The epitomy of this ridiculous policy change is we now have a military-industrial supplier (GE) as owners of a broadcast network (NBC). So now they can report whatever news suits their income stream the best.

The upcoming available frequencies should be used to extend internet and other wireless coverage to the entire USA. Even those places ignored and left in the dark because they are 'not profitable.'

These firms have been given break after break after break 'because universal coverage costs too much.' They then do nothing but pocket the government cash.

You are not the Corporate Communications Commission, you are the Federal Communications Commission please act like it.
