

Preserving Internet for Public Good

To Whom This May Concern:

I ask that the FCC use this wireless opportunity to better assist ALL Americans in obtaining quality hi-speed, unneutralized internet access.

Internet access is no longer a luxury but a human communication necessity. It assists students pursuing education, striving families-single parents-single young adults searching for local and nationwide assistance, the list is endless. The point is that it assists us and many of our human needs; and such a strong, vital tool should not be controlled by a monopoly profit seeking corporation. Everyone is entitled to quality wireless internet and it is now possible with this opportunity.

Human needs and services are to be the servant of man kind and not the master.
