

Is freedom on for the wealthiest amongst us?

Since Ronald Reagan, I've watched the FCC and other government regulatory agencies become nothing more than tools for the wealthiest amongst us to become wealthier and more powerful. The average American has been slowly beaten down, disenfranchised, and made to believe that they are the ones making their own lives worse.

When the corporate media refused to reveal the truth about how we've been lied into a false war, into voting for people who do not have our best interest, and who out there is fighting on our own behalf, the internet quickly filled that void.

A new enlightenment sprung up almost over night. People were beginning to finally see the truth, revealed to them through the internet. The people's voices rose up in a roar of defiance and condemnation. The people rediscovered, through the medium of the internet, that they were not alone and that they had power. Some even began to remember that the government works for us. We are its source of power.

Of course, this terrified the new aristocracy of America. Their power wasn't absolute. There can only be one way for the power elite to reassert its and that is by controlling and weakening the tool that re-awakened us. They must completely control the internet.

I am here to tell you that we the people are only just beginning to push back. We're not going to stop until we have reestablished democracy in our country.
