

To: Federal Communications Commission,

The public airways should be used for the public good, not for the monopolization of and profiteering by large media conglomerates.

Please do your duty as the people of the United States by protecting our freedoms and ensuring that internet access remains accessible and gains speed as our technological needs increase as a country.

We have fallen behind the rest of the world in our bandwidth capacity, services and access. Frankly, our networks and technological capabilities are pathetic compared to the rest of the world.

For the sake of our economy and national pride, please ensure that innovators have access to the available bandwidth and that it is not locked down by the big telecoms.

Our technology and future as a competitive nation is in your hands -- and on your head.

Please act responsibly,

Anna Kaziunas
