

The government must protect our airwaves for "We the People" against the actions to expand control by the same corporate gatekeepers that have stifled innovation and competition in Internet markets. Their profit motives does not allow consideration the of the needs of individuals. "We the People" rely on the protection the FCC gives us. This is not a responsibility, it is a moral obligation. Please do not forget us during your deliberations.

To restore America's leadership in high speed Internet services, the FCC must ensure that the upcoming auction sets aside at least 30 MHz of spectrum for open and non-discriminatory Internet access. This will guarantee that new entrants have the opportunity to enter the market in competition with incumbent providers.

It would be a big mistake to hand over these airwaves to the very same phone and cable companies that dominate the wireline market. We need more competition and innovation, not more of the same. This new wireless spectrum must be kept open and neutral so that America can build a better Internet for everyone.
