

Our country was founded on the ideas of equality and the Supreme Court's interpretations of the 1st Amendment provides everyone have a voice in the marketplace. The internet has been the most useful and powerful place for everyone to have that voice. The move to hand over the PUBLIC spectrum to private companies will only further erode our democracy.

To restore America's leadership in high speed Internet services, the FCC must ensure that the upcoming auction sets aside at least 30 MHz of spectrum for open and non-discriminatory Internet access. This will guarantee that new entrants have the opportunity to enter the market in competition with incumbent providers.

It would be a big mistake to hand over these airwaves to the very same phone and cable companies that dominate the wireline market. We need more competition and innovation, not more of the same. This new wireless spectrum must be open and neutral so that America can build a better Internet for everyone.
