

At present the only freedom to express opinions contrary to those being fostered by the Military Industrial Complex with their huge finances and access to the commercial airwaves through Directorial Domination is the Internet.

The government must protect our airwaves from the same corporate gatekeepers that have stifled innovation and competition in Commercial and Internet markets.

To maintain America's leadership in high speed Internet services, the FCC must ensure that the upcoming auction sets aside at least 30 MHz of spectrum for open and non-discriminatory Internet access. This will guarantee that new entrants have the opportunity to enter the market in competition with incumbent providers.

It would be a big mistake to hand over these airwaves to the very same phone and cable companies that dominate the wireline market. We need more competition and innovation, not less. This new wireless spectrum must be open and neutral so that America can build a better Internet for everyone.
