

It is critical that we improve the lives of rural Americans by expanding and protecting the Universal Service Fund for wireless providers. Wireless telecommunications has become a necessity for the American society. We need wireless telecommunications to be accessible by everybody and not only for those in a specific regions that are highly populated. We plead on behalf of the rural Americans to have access for public health, safety and economic development.