

Let ME charge ATT for THEIR use of the internet!

The internet belongs to everyone. Why can't I charge ATT and Verizon for their use of the internet?

I rely on internet to keep in touch with my family, to run my business, and to take care of bills.

I was injured in an accident a few years ago. I had so many medical bills, I had to go for periods when I couldn't even afford an internet provider from my home.

Thank God I had access to an otherwise free internet at the library and at the houses of friends. Otherwise I'd have had to give up my business, which involves selling online. Without that, I might be in the food line at some food bank right now.

I also worry about how those of us who now are heard, via our own websites, will be at the mercy of entities whose interests are other than our own.

I relinquish my right to charge Verizon for their use of the internet in exchange for not having to pay them.

Please. Allow us some measure of our democracy.