

Internet Stolen by Business!

This is nonsense-- to allow companies that seek merely to control where information goes to actually get what they want would undoubtedly lead to corruption. Media outlets could even possibly pay off the owners so that they could block information that could potentially cause them problems.

C'mon, FCC. We already have companies controlling what information we get on television and over the radio, and that's why no one listens to them anymore. Let information be free! Let Net Neutrality continue!
