

It would be a mistake for the FCC to hand over spectrum in the auction to huge mega-corporations. They already dominate the media marketplace, and in my opinion, behave in a fashion that makes them, in effect, a cartel. This stifles the marketplace, and makes it impossible for many to hook up to the Internet.

The FCC must ensure that the upcoming auction sets aside at least 30 MHz of spectrum for open and non-discriminatory Internet access. This will guarantee that new entrants have the opportunity to enter the market in competition with incumbent providers.
