

Net Neutrality is critical to Americans. We do not need the help of already over-powerful and bloated communications companies to manage the Internet.

The Internet was founded as an open network and is paid for by everyone who uses it. Please keep it that way. Tell these greedy money-grabbers to attend to the business they are responsible for already. That is, piping bits from one point to another. This is why we call them "carriers." They have no business whatsoever getting involved in managing content or how it is used.

Thank you for your fine work, and for protecting the rights and privileges we have come to expect, have worked for, and are entitled to.
