

Internet freedom.

Net Neutrality is essential to free speech, equal opportunity and economic innovation in America. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

This fundamental change would end the open Internet as we know it. It would damage my ability to connect with others, share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy. The FCC must ensure that broadband providers do not block, interfere with or discriminate against any lawful Internet traffic based on its ownership, source or destination.

Imagine that anytime you perform a web search on any product, the only web sites that will load are only big brand name companies. This would grossly unbalance the internet to favour only large companies. Once big companies control the internet they will be able to charge whatever they want knowing that there is no alternative for consumers.

In addition, the free flow of information would die over night. We would be forced to hear only what the big companies want us to hear. Democracy, as we know it, would end. These companies are trying to push us one step closer to a Nazi Government. Please, we, the people, implore you: do not give in to these companies.

Thank you, for standing up for you fellow Americans; we truly appreciate it.

Respectfully,
Brian
