

Net Neutrality - Let Freedom Ring

The internet in its current form is the last bastion of true freedom in this country. If communications corporations are allowed to dictate the availability of information based entirely upon self serving economic currents, all competition faced by these hulking oligopolies will be forever lost in this medium.