Dear FCC:

This merger between SIRIUS and XM Satellite Radios offers the potential to yield substantial benefits to the consumer and enhance the dynamics of competition within the audio entertainment marketplace.

If this merger is approved, the combined company will offer consumers the best of each service on their current radios. There will be better pricing choices and new subscription packages. The best of both SIRIUS and XM at a lower cost than the price of subscribing to both services separately, is a major benefit to consumers.

If the terrestrial broadcasters genuinely believed that the merger would substantially increase price, they would support -- not oppose -- the merger, given that higher prices for satellite radio would translate into larger audiences and ad revenues for them.

As a United States citizen, voter and tax payer I support the merger between SIRIUS and XM Satellite radios.

Sincerely,

Kenneth L. Schiendelman
