

Maintaining Internet Net Neutrality is important to the continued growth and viability of the medium. Even, level playing field has allowed the explosive increase and innovation in the Internet over the last decade. ISPs should not be, and should not be allowed to, double-bill for access to the connections consumers pay for; they should not be allowed to limit competition by restricting or blocking services to force/encourage consumers to use their services.