

My name is Sean McCully, I am writing to the FCC in regards to Net Neutrality.

I have been informed that Friday the 15 of June 2007 is the last day the FCC will accept comments regarding Net Neutrality. I send my comment as a Citizen of the United States in full support of Net Neutrality. I believe that if the companies who do not support Net Neutrality were allowed to exert monopolistic control over the networks, the idea of Freedom of thought will suffer. We see this today in the control China exhibits over their networks, and the business that deal with China. The Internet was built on the Ideas of free exchange of information and should remain this way. It (the internet) provides us with a tool thats is unparalleled in human history in the ability and speed of communication. Knowledge is a dangerous tool, and if it is allowed to be controlled by a subselect of our society it will be used for against those without it.
