

I think the proposed merger between Sirius and XM should go through. My reasons are that if the company is one, than it has a better chance of making its stockholders profits. Satellite radio must compete against many similar mediums (e.g. over-the-air radio, ipods, etc.), on top of competing against these medium they must also compete against each other, this does not lead to a beneficial competetive enviroment.