

FCC Please do not approve the merger of two competing services, just as Dish Network and DirectTV were not allowed to merge.

Competition is a good thing, allowing the market to decide which, if either, service should survive.

Both entities at the beginning, agreed to not to merge. Now, when their bad decisions bear fruit, they want the law changed. This is bad precedent, and bad for consumers. Choice is good.

Allow the market to operate as intended, and if they cannot survive because they have a bad business plan, or bad execution of a plan, so be it.

Please do not "save" what the market would cast aside, especially when they agreed not to merge.

Thank you for protecting consumers from a monopoly.

John White