

My career choice depends on net neutrality

I will be heading off to Miami University in the fall to study Computer Science. As someone who, in the future, will most likely be dependent on the internet for my job and as an internet user myself, I need the internet to be a free place.