

America, The Forgotten Land of the Free

“I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands. One nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.”

As Americans, we grew up reciting this for years, but it appears we have lost sight of our pledge of Allegiance. We pledged to have justice, we pledged to be united, we pledged to be free. America was born on the foundation of freedom. I grew up understanding this and believing it. You, as an American in a position of wealth, of intellect, and of power, are who we, the common people, depend on for guidance. You are our big brothers and sisters. We look up to you, and though we argue and fight, like all siblings do, we respect you and ask for your help when we need it most. We need you to please understand us and put aside any negative thoughts you have of us, or any conflicts of interests that prevent you from doing what's right for America. We, as Americans, are a family. A family cannot survive if it continues to throw away good family values which is, in America, our promises of freedom and responsibility to do what's right for our country. I believe that America can be the great country it once was if it begins to value its people and its promises such as in the pledge of allegiance and the constitution. One of America's greatest mediums for freedom is currently being threatened. It is one of the few things in this country that unites us in many ways and its restriction will hinder America greatly. The freedom of the internet allows this country to grow exponentially by providing so much. Please notice the importance of the internet and help us keep it free. Please protect Net Neutrality. Aside from Net Neutrality, please take action to strengthen and better America for our future.
