

Don't let corporations take my freedom!

As an aspiring writer, the Internet helps me get my name out there and allows me to network with potential employers. I hate to think that one day all the literary journals that have sites--and not a lot of money--would be under the control of corporations who don't care anything about art; all they're concerned with is money. Most of the companies that I choose to do business are small and do not have huge amounts of money to use on paying tolls to the companies that have all the money already. I think Net Neutrality is essential to keeping big corporations from gaining even more power over our lives.