

Open Communication

Open communication is essential to democracy. Net Neutrality is essential to free speech. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

As a school board official, I support our ability to share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy.