

The Internet is Democracy

Our country is not a democracy, it is a republic. This is why net neutrality is so important, because the internet is the most democratic tool ever invented. It allows citizens from all over the country, and all over the world, to get their voices heard and share ideas and opinions on how to make this country a better place for all of us.

If we allow corporate interests to control this most democratic of tools, we might as well rewrite our national anthem: "Land of the censored and the home of the corporate."