

The Airwaves Belong to the People

It is essential that freedom of speech be protected in the United States. Large cable and telephone companies do not have the interest of the individual person at heart. In these days of such egregious corporate power over our lives the thought of losing one more avenue of free communication with others is appalling. The bureaucrats of the FCC must realize that they can be replaced if they cave in to these large, greedy businesses.