

The Internet is ours, hands off!

The Internet belongs to the people, not just of the United States, but the world. The broadband providers have no right to regulate who and what is discussed over this medium. Look what has happened to the Main Stream Media, the TV news and Newspapers, now they are little more than propaganda ministries for the Government, and their Corporate America bed mate.

I personally pay Verizon over a $100 a month for access to the internet, I am paying for the right to use the internet the way I see fit. Do not let them have gatekeeper control to access.

Net Neutrality is essential to free speech, equal opportunity and economic innovation in America. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

This fundamental change would end the open Internet as we know it. It would damage my ability to connect with others, share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy. The FCC must ensure that broadband providers do not block, interfere with or discriminate against any lawful Internet traffic based on its ownership, source or destination.
