

Our lack of Health holds us Hostage in our homes

Net Neutrality is essential to free speech, equal opportunity and economic innovation in America. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

This fundamental change would end the open Internet as we know it. It would damage my ability to connect with others, share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy. The FCC must ensure that broadband providers do not block, interfere with or discriminate against any lawful Internet traffic based on its ownership, source or destination. A lot of people are disabled or go through times of illness and they are unable to get out of their homes. The internet is a way for everybody to connect with others and make their views known. Why have free speech if there is no way available to speak. Many are disabled or handicapped so we make our public places have facilities available for the disabled. Taking the internet away will only prevent our handicapped citizens from making contact with others to the full extent of their freedoms given to us by our Constitution that our Country has been so proud. Why do we have to continually have to fight for our freedoms to prevent losing them.
