

Limiting internet freedom is limiting my freedom.

I am very new to this issue, having only seen it today, but I feel that limiting internet freedom is essentially limiting my freedom to view what I like on the internet. I watch videos on sites like Youtube.com and Veoh.com, I help my father with a photo blog we update for our family, and I frequent a fairly popular chat website named Gaiaonline.com. These are only just a few of my pastimes on the internet. If the big phone companies get a hold of the internet and start regulating what speeds sites can have, then I fear that most of my favorite sites will either run at a snail's pace or not run at all. I know that there are many others in America just like me that don't know about this. Please, if not for me, then for them, at least postpone the bill until we can be sure that a greater amount of Americans will know what is happening. So far, I haven't even seen this issue on any newscasts. I thank you for your time reading this message, and I hope that I can make a difference.
