

The Internet saved my life

The only reason you see me as a video producer is because of a life saving surgery that my doctors told me to avoid simply because they had not researched it. If I had not had the internet available to me in it's entirety, I would have made a serious mistake. After 30 plus years of suffering from the prison of obesity I have been released. In the 6 years since this miracle, my life has changed immeasurably.

Before the internet I would have taken the advice of my uninformed doctor and would be either in a desperate situation or dead. My first entry in my profile of a website that became my life was about the fact that I was already dead. Thanks to the internet and this site, I was able to gather the information out there to save my life.
