

The FCC Must Persevere Democracy

Net Neutrality is essential to democracy in America as well as other countries throughout the world. The FCC has already removed a basic protection in 2005 in favor of corporate media. The FCC has undermined the founding principles of this nation. The internet has become the last frontier, a gathering place for all citizens to speak, learn and prosper. Please do not allow the executives of phone and cable companies to become the Internet's gatekeepers as you have in radio and Television. The internet as well as the will of the people is what will keep democracy and hope alive in this country. Surely you recognize the mistake in allowing corporations to own Television, radio and newspaper. Media ownership WAS regulated for clear and determined reasons, to persevere democracy. The intent is clear as well as the mandate of the FCC, to protect free speech. Free Speech has always been held as the cornerstone to democracy and a right guaranteed by the constitution. The FCC has a responsibility to protect and defend the constitution. The FCC must not put the people's frontier in the hands of few corporations. No one owns the internet, not this country, not this government, not the media. It is for the people and by the people. Let democracy live... keep the net neutral.
