

Freedoms of our country being chipped away.

I am in my 60's and have seen our freedoms chipped away, year after year in this wonderful country. The internet has been a great way to learn about the world and the wonderful education the people of all ages. It is a great way to reach out to people around the world and keep in touch with our friends and loved ones. It also is a wonderful tool to shop by, with convenience for all ages. Most of all it has allowed freedom of speech, something that has been greatly limited in recent years and is so necessary for a Democracy. I truly hope big business and big money don't take this freedom away from us. If this happens, I will never purchase another thing online. I do hope the folks at the FCC appreciate the great educational tool for our young school children the internet is and continues to support this freedom. And for the millions of people that make their living from the internet, this is essential for our and their economy. Please keep us free of interference.

Sincerely, Dawn Wilson

Net Neutrality is essential to free speech, equal opportunity and economic innovation in America. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

This fundamental change would end the open Internet as we know it. It would damage my ability to connect with others, share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy. The FCC must ensure that broadband providers do not block, interfere with or discriminate against any lawful Internet traffic based on its ownership, source or destination.
