

Its our right to have the resources we need.

Net Neutrality is essential to free speech, equal opportunity and economic innovation in America. Since the FCC removed this basic protection in 2005, the top executives of phone and cable companies have stated their intention to become the Internet's gatekeepers and to discriminate against Web sites that don't pay their added tolls.

This fundamental change would end the open Internet as we know it. It would damage my ability to connect with others, share information and participate in our 21st century democracy and economy. The FCC must ensure that broadband providers do not block, interfere with or discriminate against any lawful Internet traffic based on its ownership, source or destination. We are a democracy and we need to diffrenciate our selves from the other countries that would let something like this happen. We speak as a country that deserves the right for us to have the resources we need to let us enjoy our lives the way it is and not in a limited way.
